Judy's Dancing Shoes Fetch Bid of $15,000

CULVER CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The $14 ruby red slippers in which Judy Garland danced down the yellow brick road in "The Wizard of Oz" fetched $15,000 Sunday night as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer continued to auction off its history.

The bidding started at $1,000, jumped a few times, settled on $11,000 and finally ended at $15,000.

It took less than a minute Sunday night and Richard Wonder, who identified himself as a representative of a "Southern California millionaire," walked off with the dancing shoes.

Wonder, who started the bidding, said he had been authorized by his client to go as high as $22,000.

Another item from the 1939 movie offered as costumes from 3,000 old MGM motion pictures were auctioned off was the Cowardly Lion's suit worn by Bert Lahr.

Dr. Julius Marini, West Covina, Calif., who earlier had purchased Johnny Weissmuller's original loincloth from his first "Tarzan" picture, bought the lion suit for $2,400.

The witch's hat from the same film brought $450.

Clark Gable's "lucky" trench-coat, which he wore in a half dozen pictures, was purchased by Bob Cahlan, a New Orleans radio executive, for $1,250. Gable first wore the coat in 1939 in "Comrad X."

Gina Lollobrigida's black lace panties went for only $50 but the hat Charles Laughton wore in "Mutiny on the Bounty" brought $300.

Elizabeth Taylor's bridal gown from "Father of the Bride," went for $625 and a dress Miss Garland wore in "Meet Me in St. Louis," was purchased for $600.

The first item on the auction block Sunday, part of the thousands of items the auctioneers paid $1.5 million for, was a green velvet hat with ostrich feather once sported by Greta Garbo. It went for $300 to Larry Rupert, who like many bidders, was buying costumes for displays at state fairs, fashion and home shows.

One of the stars on hand was Debbie Reynolds, who had to go up to $200 to get the dress she wore in "How the West was Won."

Draft Coun To Cover A

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans are being developed to offer counseling on the military draft and its legal alternatives in the city's 92 public high schools next fall.

Irving Anker, acting superintendent of schools, said Sunday a staff of draft counselors would supply advice on such draft alternatives as medical deferments and conscientious-objector status as well as information on the Reserve Officer Training Corps and Officer Candidate School.
